MOTHERHOOD IS CONTAGIOUS

The big-eyed stares of these two tortoiseshell cats can be translated as the watchful glances of mother cats. Cinderella, at the top of the picture, has four kittens. Raggedy Ann is the mother of two. The two litters were born a day apart. Neither mother cat is related to the other but the kittens are getting all mixed up. Raggedy Ann helps out with the nursing for overworked Cinderella. The cats belong to Mrs. Frances Alvorod of 13 Sir Francis Drake boulevard, Ross, and her 18-year-old daughter, Mimi. (Independent-Journal photo)

Three Accused Of Assault Due In Court

Three youths, accused of trying to rob a waiter in the driveway of his home in Glenwood yesterday morning, are scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Monday afternoon with the public defender as attorney.

Robert Wayne Kitzmiller, 23, of San Anselmo, is in jail in lieu of $3,100. Bail for Raymond Leon Gasser, 20, of Santa Rosa is $3,000; for Robert Luis Hernandez, 18, of Novato, $2,500.

They are accused of trying to rob and using force to get money from Joseph Albert Morin, 36, of 19 Brentwood, Glenwood subdivision.

Morin said he had just driven home from work as waiter in Sausalito about 1:30 a.m. when the three ordered him to give up his money. He refused, and they attacked. Morin's shouts frightened the trio, who drove off. Sheriff's deputies arrested the youths at an Ignacio drive-in.

Steelworkers Hold Off On Strike Threat

Union Chief Acts
After Appeal
From Eisenhower

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Steelworkers Union, acting on a bid from President Eisenhower, today postponed the threat of a steel strike until midnight, July 14.

Union president David J. McDonald announced extension of steel contracts that otherwise would expire on June 30. The extension is for a period of two weeks.

IKE'S LETTER

Eisenhower about an hour earlier released in Washington a letter to McDonald suggesting there be no steel strike. The President called on both the union and industry to continue bargaining without interruption of production until all terms and conditions of a new contract were agreed upon.

McDonald then made public a message to Eisenhower saying a two-week contract extension "will provide ample time to conclude new collective bargaining agreements in good faith negotiations."

McDonald said he was suggesting that stalemated negotiations with the industry be resumed tomorrow afternoon.

BID REJECTED

McDonald yesterday declined further sessions with industry representatives, saying they had been fruitless. He called for direct talks with steel company top executives, but that bid was flatly rejected.

McDonald announced this morning, after a meeting with the union's 33-man executive board, that he would go back into session with the regular industry team, headed by U.S. Steel Corp. vice president R. Conrad Cooper.

NO 'FILIBUSTER'

"But I'm not going to sit in another filibuster session," McDonald said. "I'm not interested in their case histories."

The union chief expressed hope that "industry's liaison men have some instructions from their superiors to do some real negotiating."

His statement was followed shortly by an announcement by a steel industry spokesman that the industry would be willing to resume negotiations.

MARIN'S SOCIAL WHIRL

Bon Voyage Party Series Calendared

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

A series of bon voyage parties will honor two popular Marin couples, Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Brennan and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Paganini, who are leaving soon for European travels. The Brennans, who are traveling by jet, leave on Aug. 22 and soon afterward the Paganinis will depart and they will have a rendezvous in Rome. While the Brennans are away their friends, the Sheldon Griffins of San Francisco, will occupy their Kent Woodlands home.

For the traveling couples, the John Campions are hosting a dinner at their home in Fairhills on July 14. Incidentally, tonight the Campions are celebrating their 34th wedding anniversary with a dinner party at their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Seaman are giving two dinner parties for the Brennans and Paganinis at their home in Ross. Invited to each event are 40 guests. One will be July 25, and the other Aug. 8. The Robert Quinlans are giving a dinner at Ondine's for the travelers on Aug. 14. The George Schirmers will entertain for the two couples when they return. On July 18 Dr. and Mrs. Brennan will have as their guests at the cocktail party of the Powder Puff Guild of Sunny Hills at the Jack Wards' home Messrs. and Mesdames Schirmer, Seaman, Quinlan and Edward Mahoney and afterward will entertain them at a dinner at their home.

THE THREE DIFFERENT themes were carried out in the centerpieces of the tables at the dinner and dancing party the Mert Hipsleys of Ross gave a week ago tonight honoring the Gus Niederholzers, the William Prices and Harold Moores.

The Niederholzers are now back in their Kent Woodlands home after three and a half months of travel in the Orient.

So one table was ornamented by a figurine of a Chinese fisherman. Ruth and Bill Price, who left for Europe on April 13, spent some time in Paris where she did extensive shopping. Accordingly, at their table, was a miniature gown salmon with a courtier and model. The Moores, who live in London, England, are here to visit their niece, Mrs. Herbert Milley of Hillsborough, and her husband. Highly original was the centerpiece of their table. On a typical English lamp post were flags with the E.R. in gold and basing the pole were "banks of fog," and encircling the centerpiece were small black umbrellas.

LONGTIME FRIENDS will meet at the tea Mrs. Jordan L. Martinelli and Miss Dorothy Sharp are giving on Tuesday afternoon at the Martinelli home in San Rafael honoring Mrs. Ignacio W. Borda of Englewood, N.J., former Marin resident, who is here on a visit. Assisting in receiving will be Mrs. Borda's mother, Mrs. G. B. Waferman, her daughter, Mrs. James Higgins, Miss Sharp's two sisters, Mrs. Eugene L. Covey and Miss Evelyn Sharp, Mrs. Martinelli's sister, Mrs. Albert Kelly, and her two daughters-in-law, Mrs. Jordan L. Martinelli Jr. and Mrs. Rodriguez Martinelli, and Mesdames Lytle W. Hollingsworth, John Kirkpatrick and Harry Lutgens. At the door will be Laurie Higgins, granddaughter of Mrs. Borda, and Louisa Martinelli, daughter of the Jordan Martinelli Jr.

TO ATTEND the wedding of their son, Richard Rhodes, and Inge Bauer, in the Lutheran Church in Stuttgart, Germany, on July 11, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Rhodes of San Rafael left on Thursday. They flew to New York and are sailing from there today aboard the SS Atlantic for Amsterdam.

The future bride is leaving San Francisco by jet on July 3 for Europe and his bride-elect returned to Germany about a month ago to complete wedding plans.

She has been employed in San Francisco. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Wilhelm Bauer of Stuttgart and after the wedding they will tour Europe for a month with the bridegroom's parents.

Richard and his bride, after a honeymoon in Bavaria, will return to San Francisco.

A COMBINATION birthday party will be hosted tonight by the John Dowlings for a small group of friends. The dinner celebrates John's birthday which was Tuesday, his wife Jean's birthday, Wednesday, and Jack Ward's birthday today.

A BRUNCH was given Sunday by Ann Wiper at the Sausalito home of her parents, Dr.

and Mrs. Thomas B. Wiper honoring Jane Olds and Tony Zanze of San Francisco who are to be married soon. Ann's co-

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the engagement of Deanna Catherine Zeien (above) and Richard Locati by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zeien of Novato. The future bride is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Locati of San Rafael.

DEANNA ZEIEN TO BECOME BRIDE OF RICHARD LOCATI

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Zeien of Novato, formerly of San Rafael, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Deanna Catherine, to Richard George Locati, son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Locati of San Rafael.

Richard surprised Deanna with her ring before attending the recent San Rafael High Senior Prom. They announced their engagement at the Prom which was held in the St. Francis Hotel in San Francisco.

The bride-elect is the sister of Mrs. Jerry Routh of San Rafael and Beverly, Nancy and Linda Zeien of Novato. Mrs. A. J. Duffy of San Rafael is her grandmother and Fred Bolton of Waterloo, Iowa, her grandfather.

The future bride is the daughter of San Rafael High School in 1958 and is employed at Cuthbert Blueprint and Photo Service. Jo Ann Locati of San Rafael is his sister.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL

Governor Has Too Much Fiscal Power With Budget

An agency of democratic government is not designed to operate on a fiscal teeter totter. Neither is it supposed to operate in the red (federal government please note), nor is it supposed to assess taxes too high, thus piling up huge surpluses.

Our state constitution wisely provides that the governor must prepare and present to the Legislature early in every session, a proposed budget for the coming fiscal year and a method of balancing that budget with income.

In addition, the constitution says that the Legislature may pass no other bills appropriating money until a state budget has been approved by both houses and sent to the governor.

This is a wise provision. Certainly no one with financial responsibility should start spending money for fringe items or frills until his basic expenditures had been determined.

The constitution does not, however, require the Legislature to pass the budget by a certain time in the session, nor the governor to act on it with alacrity. He treats it just like any other bill.

Thus this anomalous situation arises. The legislative session is over, most of the bills requiring new and higher taxes already signed, and we don't know yet the size of our final budget.

This situation is not unusual. Most governors in recent years have manuvered passage of the budget so that he has it before him after the solons go home.

This gives him tremendous power. Unlike the President, the governor may veto or reduce individual items in the budget. With new taxes already approved, he could reduce items to give him a large surplus and claim great economies in government. On the other hand, he could play politics and strike out appropriations dear to the hearts of legislators who opposed him.

Because the legislative session is over, the American principle of checks and balances breaks down. Perhaps the governor will eliminate something which a large majority of the legislators believe in and desire. Yet they have no opportunity to override his veto.

We write this before this year's budget is signed and before we know what this governor is going to do. We voice a general objection to present law, rather than against our present governor.

It seems logical that our constitution should provide that the Legislature complete its action and the governor sign or veto all or parts of the budget before the Legislature adjourns. Then the solons would have an opportunity to override the vetoes, if they desire. Then too, all appropriation bills subsequently passed should declare specifically where the money is coming from to pay their costs.

WORDS, WORDS, WORDS

Business executives are topping authors in the output of words these days, according to a recent survey by a dictating machine manufacturer.

The average executive writes about 300,000 words a year compared to the 150,000 usually turned out by a professional writer, it was revealed.

Be they few or many, words are essential in the communication of thought. But whether one is a housewife, student, barber, businessman or author, words take on added meaning if they are used sparingly rather than profusely, candidly not insincerely and purposefully instead of glibly.

MARIN LOOKS AT POLITICS

Larkspur Man's Trial Balloon

Opens Race For McCollister's Seat

By CHAPIN A. DAY

Dick McCollister isn't going to run again for assemblyman. It's official now. After 20 years he says he's had enough.

So who will represent Marin and Sonoma Counties in Sacramento?

Decision on that is still 17 months away. But the rumors, trial balloons and informal candidacies are already circulating.

We've known for a long time that San Rafael Attorney William T. Bagley, Marin District Attorney William O. Weissich and Sonoma Supervisor Leigh Shoemaker would like the job. But they're all Republicans.

SO FAR THE Democrats haven't come up with a solid suggestion. John Fitzgerald, Santa Rosa attorney, has been mentioned. He's been mentioned before. Mrs. Vera Schultz, Marin supervisor who lost to McCollister in 1950, also is discussed, but she's been heard to say she's going to stay a supervisor at least until the Civic Center is under way.

There has been more than a little talk among Democratic bigwigs that they shouldn't even look for a candidate in Marin. The candidate, so the talk goes, should come from Sonoma which has the bulk of the Democrats.

Apparently there's at least one Democrat in Marin who might have a different idea. The story is circulating that Price J. Hall, member and former chairman of the Larkspur Planning Commission, would not be adverse to making a run for it.

HALL IS NOT A newcomer to politics. Whether this is to his advantage or disadvantage is yet to be seen. He was a member of the Marin County Democratic Central Committee two years ago but resigned after a disagreement with the party bigwigs. Seems he was supposed to head the Dollars For Democrats drive in the Larkspur area. He maintained he couldn't go to people and ask for money when the people he asked might next night appear before him and ask for a planning variance.

The bigwigs insisted that not enough dollars came out of the Democrats in Larkspur. Hall resigned.

Hall, now 46, has been dabbling in politics for 40 years. When he was 6, he took part in his first campaign, passing out cards for a constable candidate in Sacramento. The candidate lost, but gave Hall a watch the next Christmas.

THAT HOOKED him. He hung around committee and floor session when the legislature was in session. Then Sheridan Downey got him a job as a project clerk in the Department of Agriculture's migrant labor camps.

He got into party organization again as a member of the San Francisco County Committee when big Bill Malone was running the show there. And he was appointed to the State Central Committee in 1948 by then Sen. Gerald O'Gara of San Francisco.

The Federated Young Democrats of California, Inc., a number of years ago, was organized in Hall's basement.

Public Going All Out To Help Lawmen Catch Marijuana Farmers

Marijuana growing is hazardous business, especially since the county's citizens are joining law officers in keeping a sharp eye out for the forbidden plants.

The sheriff has already received a half dozen reports from citizens who reported plants similar to marijuana. They turned out to be harmless plants, but the sheriff is so gratified at the response, he has sent each person who called a personal letter of thanks.

Some people think marijuana looks like a young tomato plant; others describe it as similar to young Oriental maple with thin green leaves.

If you're in doubt, better call Inspector Dick Argento of the sheriff's office or Inspector Don Midgett of the D.A.'s office to identify it before you try smoking it. After all, you don't want your cigarette to have a tomato or maple taste.

YOU CAN STOP hoarding the brand new 1959 pennies with the new design. Bank officials assure us there is no error in the printing.

For a while there, rumors were floating around that the coins were being re-called by the bank. But it just isn't so. I tried to make a few bucks by taking a pocketful to the bank and redeeming them for a nickel apiece, or even two cents apiece. But they wouldn't give me a plugged penny more than one cent.

Wouldn't It Be Well For GOP To Delay Decision On President?

There is a world of sense in the counsel which John Alsop of Connecticut is giving to Republican leaders across the country against plumping too soon for the 1960 Presidential nominee.

Alsop headed the Connecticut Citizens for Eisenhower in 1952 and may be his state's next Republican candidate for governor. His advise against lining up precipitately for either Vice-President Nixon or Gov. Rockefeller is to the point:

"Let's keep cool, receptive, and uncommitted. It is much too early to take a position."

20 YEARS AGO

The War Department in Washington issued orders for 6,100 troops who would appear in military ceremonies welcoming King George VI and Queen Elizabeth. Instructions covered activities until after President and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and their majesties would enter the White House grounds.

Frank Keaton, center fielder for the 20-30 softball team, was not given credit for a hit when he smashed a ripe cantaloupe tossed at him in the second inning in lieu of the regulation softball.

The Country Parson

"Some of us who like country churches feel right at home in big city churches—enough of their members stay home each week to make their churches seem small."

TRY AND STOP ME

BENNETT CERF

Thomas Wolfe, author of "Look Homeward Angel," made heavy weather out of the most minute chore. He called on his editor, the late Max Perkins, for lunch one day, and was handed a copy of his latest novel. "A friend asked me to get this autographed for him," explained Perkins. "Please sign it while I get my coat."

When Perkins returned, an agitated Wolfe was pacing up and down the office. "I don't know what to write," he confessed. He continued his pacing fully five minutes longer, then seized a pen and wrote on the flyleaf of the volume, "Yours hurriedly, Thomas Wolfe."

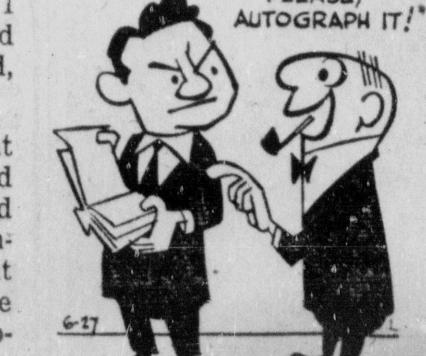

It was a visibly shaken customer who clutched the coat-tail of a passing underling and quavered, "Waiter! While I was watching my hat and overcoat like the sign said, somebody stole my steak!"

Peter Fleming recalls that on the fateful day in World War II when Hitler unleashed his greatest armada on London, and blitzed the gallant British for six solid hours, the Staid London Times—in moments of crisis perhaps the greatest character-actor on the stage of public life in England—faithfully recorded the discovery in an air-raid shelter in Euston of a Great Crested Grebe!

And here's news of a new kind of AA—Athletes Anonymous. If you're nudging middle age and weigh a bit more than you should—and still feel tempted to squeeze in an extra nine holes after a full round, or attempt a set of singles after a tough doubles match, you just phone this new AA and state your problem. An AA (Athletes Anonymous) brother comes over in a jiffy and drinks with you until the urge disappears.

Epitaph for a hypochondriac: "I told you I was sick!"

During the past six and a half years in his role as vice president, Nixon has necessarily confined himself to advocating Administration policy. He has rarely expressed his personal opinions and even less often has he advanced his own proposals on policy.

This is simply saying no vice president is entirely his own man and there is no doubt in my mind that the time will soon come when the President will say to Nixon:

"Don't feel bound by the Administration program. It is only fair to yourself and the party that you set forth your own convictions and your own policies in any area you wish."

Washington correspondents know that Nixon's concepts of the presidency and of policy are not the same as Eisenhower's at all points. Not until Nixon is free to speak out more fully for himself will the party leaders have the best basis for deciding he is the man they want—or don't want.

FOR DIFFERENT reasons the same is true of Rockefeller. Six months in the governorship is no adequate test of what kind of a President he would make. He has not yet made a sufficient record in Albany to show where his hand on the political compass is going to point.

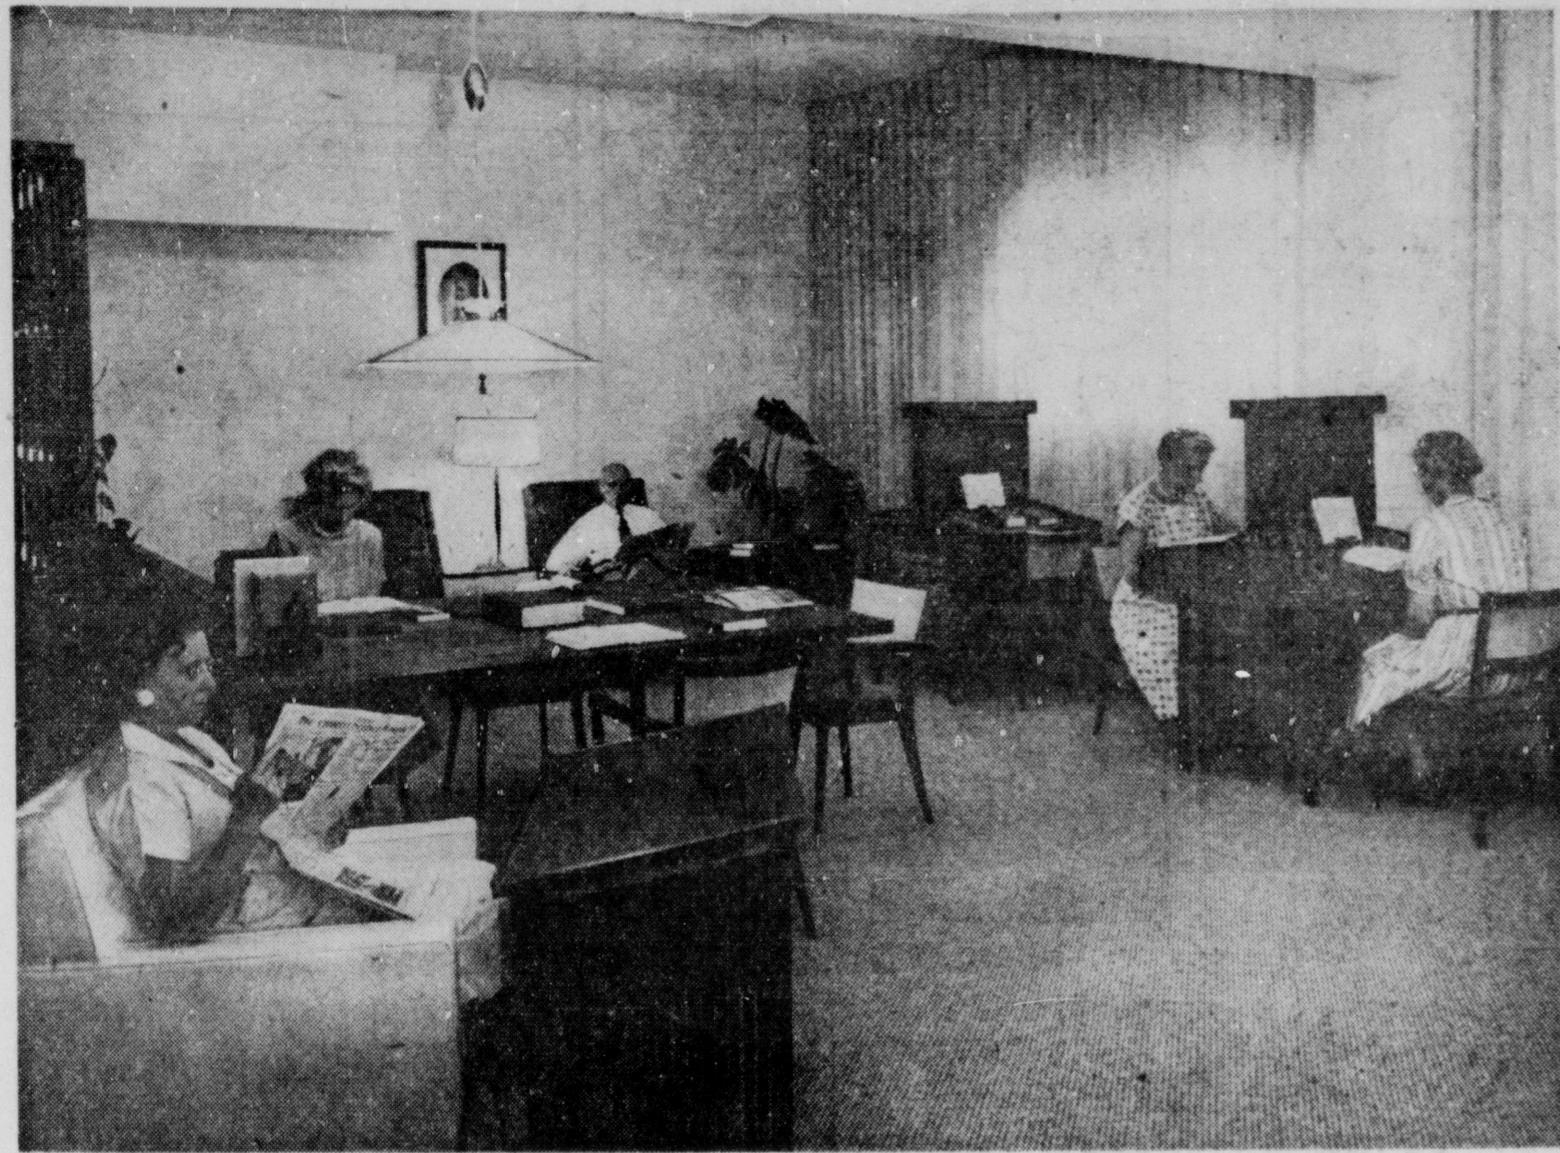

Republican leaders need to see him on the job longer—at least into another session of the Legislature—in order to have an adequate basis for wanting him—or not wanting him—in the White House.

Many people no doubt sincerely believe that they already know enough about Nixon and Rockefeller to be convinced that either would make a good President. This makes the second part of the test for the presidential nominee—who will be the more effective candidate—the more controlling.

IF THE NOMINATION is likely to turn on who will be the better candidate, this is an added reason for not rushing the decision. The reason I say this is that when Mr. Nixon and Mr. Rockefeller emerge more sharply for what they are and stand for, the rank-and-file voters will have a better basis for deciding whom they want nominated. This is one reason why later public opinion polls may offer a different or a more decisive guide than they do now.

The burden of John Alsop's counsel is: Wouldn't it be well for the Republican leaders to wait for more knowledge of these two men before choosing up sides?

Well, wouldn't it?

Christian Science Reading Room Open House Set

The San Rafael First Church of Christ, Scientist, will hold an open house in its new reading room this evening and tomorrow.

The room is at 1400 Fourth street, corner of Fourth and D streets. Open house hours will be 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. today and 4 to 8 p.m. tomorrow.

The street-level room has been laid out to improve service and convenience, church members said. It stocks all authorized Christian Science literature, Bibles, bound copies of Christian Science Journals and Sentinels dating back to 1883 and 1898, respectively, and a daily copy of the respected international newspaper, the Christian Science Monitor.

Books and periodicals on Christian Science and Bibles may be borrowed from the room's free lending library or purchased in the sales room.

Its new location is one of many for the reading room since the San Rafael church was organized in April, 1903. The first was in the old Masonic Hall at 1440 Fourth street. In 1907 it was moved to Redmen's Hall, Fourth and C streets, and in 1916 to the Freitas Building.

Its first street level location was at 1321 Fourth street, now the site of Glen Five and Ten-Cent store.

Rev. Baldwin was assigned to the San Rafael church last Sunday during the closing day of California-Nevada Methodist annual conference.

The assignment was made by Bishop Donald H. Tippett.

Reaffirmed to positions in Marin were Rev. William F. Dittler of Tamalpais Valley, Rev. Edgar Nelson of Mill Valley and Rev. Lawrence H. Doyle of Novato.

BUT, THEN...

Ingo 'Eager' To Give Floyd Return Shot In September

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ingemar Johansson of Sweden, who tied Jack Dempsey's knockout record in winning the world heavyweight championship, is perfectly willing—even eager—to try it again in September—to detrone Floyd Patterson thinks it was a fluke.

Johansson and his handlers made that clear today even as they celebrated his stunning third-round technical knockout over Patterson at Yankee Stadium last night—in which hand-some "Ingo" tied a Dempsey mark by scoring seven knock-downs in one round.

Edwin Ahlgqvist, Johansson's "adviser" from hometown Göteborg, Sweden, said, "We want the contracted return fight at Yankee Stadium before 80,000 people in September. They didn't come out to see him at the drenched stadium last night, but now they will next time."

Burly Ingemar—scapegoat of the 1952 Olympics, but now an international idol—said, "Yes, they've seen my right hand and so has Patterson."

But Patterson actually didn't see that right fist—that "Göteborg Thunderbolt"—early in the third round when it exploded on his chin as part of a left-right, one-two punch and dropped him to the canvas for the first of seven electrifying trips.

It was the heavy, booming right that dropped him five times, a left hook once and a left-right-left once.

Handsome, dimpled, brown-haired Ingemar, at 26, became Sweden's first world champion in any division when Referee

Ruby Goldstein refused to count over the numbed Patterson the seventh time, but waved his hands in signal that the fight was ended and Johansson had won on a technical knockout.

The time was 2:03 of the third round. It was unbeaten Ingemar's 22nd straight victory and 14th knockout.

The fight, threatened with a second postponement by two hours of rain at the stadium last night, turned the 5-1 underdog into the first European world heavyweight champion in a quarter century—since Italian Primo Carnera lost the title to Maxie Baer in 1934.

Patterson, with blood flowing from his nose and his eyes glazed with giddiness, suffered the second defeat and first knockout in his career of 37 fights—and in his fifth defense of the crown.

A return-bout contract provides that Ingemar give 24-year-old Floyd a return shot at the title within 90 days somewhere in the United States. And the contract stipulates definitely that Johansson's entire purse from last night be held in escrow until he fulfills the contract.

Promoter Bill Rosensohn, who estimated he lost about $75,000 on last night's hard-luck bout, has Johansson under contract for the return Patterson fight.

Slender, young Bill said today, "I haven't decided where to put the return fight. It may take me a week or so to pick the site."

Barrel-chested Ingo equalled the one-round knockout record of seven for a heavyweight title fight, established by Dempsey in the first round of his title-winning bout with giant Jess Willard in 1919, and equalled by Dempsey in the first round of his defense against Luis Angel Firpo in 1923.

Johansson scaled 196 pounds to Patterson's 182.

Promoter Rosensohn had not announced any official figures this forenoon, but he estimated the crowd at 30,000 and the gate at $425,000. "I need around $500,000 to break even," he said. He gets only 50 per cent of the net gate, and does not cut in on the theater-television, movies or radio.

No official theatre-TV figures were announced either.

Johansson was guaranteed $100,000 against 20 per cent of the net gate—up to $50,000—and 20 per cent of "promotion-nets" from theater-TV, radio and movies.

Patterson was to receive 30 per cent of the net gate and various percentages on a sliding scale, ranging up to 80 per cent, on the promotional nets, from theater-TV, movies and radio.

'I Didn't See Right Coming,' Moans Dejected Ex-Champion

there will be a return bout and I believe it will be the biggest draw in the history of boxing."

The speaker was Cus D'Amato, the mysterious mastermind who dreamed up the fight that cost his fighter, Floyd Patterson, the world heavyweight championship last night.

"I think Johansson will want to prove that this was no fluke," D'Amato added. "There is a return bout clause in the contract."

Some 40 minutes before, Sweden's Ingemar Johansson had stopped Patterson in 2:03 of the third round of a rain-plagued bout in Yankee Stadium. The disconsolate ex-champion had spent most of the intervening time in an inner room before he came out, fully dressed and showing few battle scars.

He backed into Mickey Mantle's dressing cubicle and the white-haired manager stood in front of him, relaying answers to shouted questions and adding his own opinions.

"I didn't see the punch coming," said the soft-voiced Patterson. "And I don't really know where it landed." D'Amato then explained: "I saw it. It landed right here—between the eyes."

The noise, confusion and delay in Patterson's dressing room was nothing compared to the scene in and around Johansson's quarters behind the visitors' dugout at Yankee Stadium.

Ingemar's sister Eva, dabbing at tears in her eyes, his mother and father—the latter still shaking from excitement, and his fiancee, Birgit Lundgren, waited out there with the mob while Ingemar leisurely showered, dressed and took time to speak a few words for the Swedish radio. Then he answered questions in a voice almost inaudible to those who weren't close to him.

I FOOL YOU

"You see I fool you," he said gleefully. "You thought my right hand was just a fantasy. I show you—and I also show Patterson."

It was the same right hand that paralyzed Eddie Machen and Johansson's failure to make use of it in training was one of the greatest of many mysteries surrounding this championship fight.

D'Amato has good reason for believing that a great many people will want to see for themselves when and if the return bout takes place.

Johansson said that first right-hand punch of the third round was the hardest blow he struck, but he still had to knock Patterson down six more times before Referee Ruby Goldstein stepped in and halted the bout.

"He kept getting up. I never had a chance to hit him so solidly again. But I knew he could never come back," Johansson said.

"It must be," he grinned.

STAMFORD, Conn. (UPI)—Gene Tunney, who retired as unbeaten heavyweight champion 30 years ago, was strong in his praise of Johansson.

"I only met him once before last night's fight and I was highly impressed," said Tunney on his return home from the title fight in New York. "I always considered Patterson a built-up novice but this Johansson, he is a real fighter."

"I AM now the boss. I am tired of being dictated to."

Promoter Bill Rosensohn, like Johansson, didn't pull any punches last night in Yankee Stadium.

"I have Johansson under exclusive contract," Rosensohn said. "I am going to promote the return bout in September."

Rosensohn added that neither Cus D'Amato, manager of Patterson, nor Irving Kahn, the theater-TV man, would have anything to say about the TV, radio or motion pictures of the return match.

Rosensohn predicted the return bout will draw a million dollars and "naturally, it will take place in the United States."

Rosensohn said the contract for a rematch was iron bound, but the site and date were indefinite.

TITLE FIGHT BRIEFS

Ref Explains Floyd Completely Helpless

NEW YORK (UPI)—"It was better for him to be able to walk out than have to be carried out."

This was Referee Ruby Goldstein's explanation of why he stopped the heavyweight championship bout between Floyd Patterson and Ingemar Johansson last night.

Ruby, 51-year-old veteran of many title bouts, gave the signal that made Johansson the champion at 2:03 of the third round after Patterson had been floored seven times.

"I didn't have any idea how much time was left in the round," Ruby said, "but it really didn't matter. A man can be injured permanently in two or three seconds."

"Patterson was worn out, completely exhausted. It wasn't a case of his suffering injuries from Johansson's punches, but the idea that he was completely

"bums" send rookie Frank Howard to Spokane PCL Club

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Frank Howard, the powerful young outfielder recently brought up from the Texas League by the Los Angeles Dodgers, is being sent to Spokane of the Coast League at his own request.

Dodger Manager Walt Alston said he didn't know who would take Howard's place, but indicated it might be a relief pitcher.

Howard, a 6-foot-6, 245-pounder, hit only .105 in 19 at bats with the Dodgers, who paid him a $108,000 bonus to sign last year.

Don Paul Signed As Ram Line Coach

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Rams have announced that Don Paul, who starred for eight years on the club as a linebacker, has been signed as the defensive line coach.

Paul, former team captain and an all-pro selection, said he was giving up his two-year connection as a coach of the college all-star staff in the annual game with the professionals in Chicago.

The Rams also announced that linebackers Bill Jobko and Roy Wilkins, who played good football in 1958 as rookies, have signed to return.

Spahn Half Way To Another '20' Season

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Fred Haney still says he's going to quit after this season, and that's his privilege, but 38-year-old Warren Spahn keeps pitching as if he plans to go on forever.

Shooting for a 20-victory season for the 10th time in his career, the veteran Milwaukee southpaw reached the halfway mark by beating the Chicago Cubs, 11-1, for his 10th triumph of the season last night.

Spahn, now ahead of his game-winning pace for any year since the Braves came to Milwaukee in 1953, helped his own cause by hitting the 22nd home run of his career in the seventh inning. He already holds the National League record for home runs hit by a pitcher.

Other high performers in other Thursday night leagues:

Early Nighters—Dave Boyd 566, Paul Troutte 535-214; Tony Costello, 516; Walt Hamburger, 213; Norm Mitchell, 203.

Mixed Doubles—Tom Wold, 573; Dick Wagner, 555-207; Elmer Tynes, 550-213.

Night Owls—Sam Gilliland, 531-202; Mike Finn, 509-201; Jerry McKinnon, 502; Bob Curtin, 201.

MOST FRUSTRATED star of the men's Friday night league last night was Painting Contractor Freddie Wentworth. On the preceding Friday Freddie led all comers with an 802 mark for four games but last night he was way down the list—and what really bothered him were six (6) splits in his last line!!

Olmedo Whips Dane; British Ace Is Upset

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI)—

Favorite Alex Olmedo of Peru, advanced to the men's quarterfinals in the Wimbledon tennis championships today by crushing Torben Ulrich of Denmark, 6-3, 6-3, 6-2. The women's favorite, Christine Truman, was ousted in a startling upset.

Miss Truman, her powerful drives hampered by gusty winds, went down before Yola Ramirez of Mexico 6-3, 6-2. The six-foot British girl, seeded No. 1 was favored to win the crown which Althea Gibson is not defending.

Olmedo, U.S. Davis cup hero, was almost flawless against the bearded, left-handed Dane.

Miss Truman's loss to Miss Ramirez was the first major upheaval in women's ranks.

POTT CONTINUES Spree In Chicago Open Tournament

CHICAGO (UPI)—Johnny Pott, the little-known, 23-year-old from Shreveport, La., showed no signs of fading in maintaining his lead through the 36-hole juncture of the $57,000 Chicago Golf Open.

Pott continued to take apart the par 35-35-70 Gleneagles public course yesterday with a 67. He coupled this with an opening course record 63 for a 10-under-par 130.

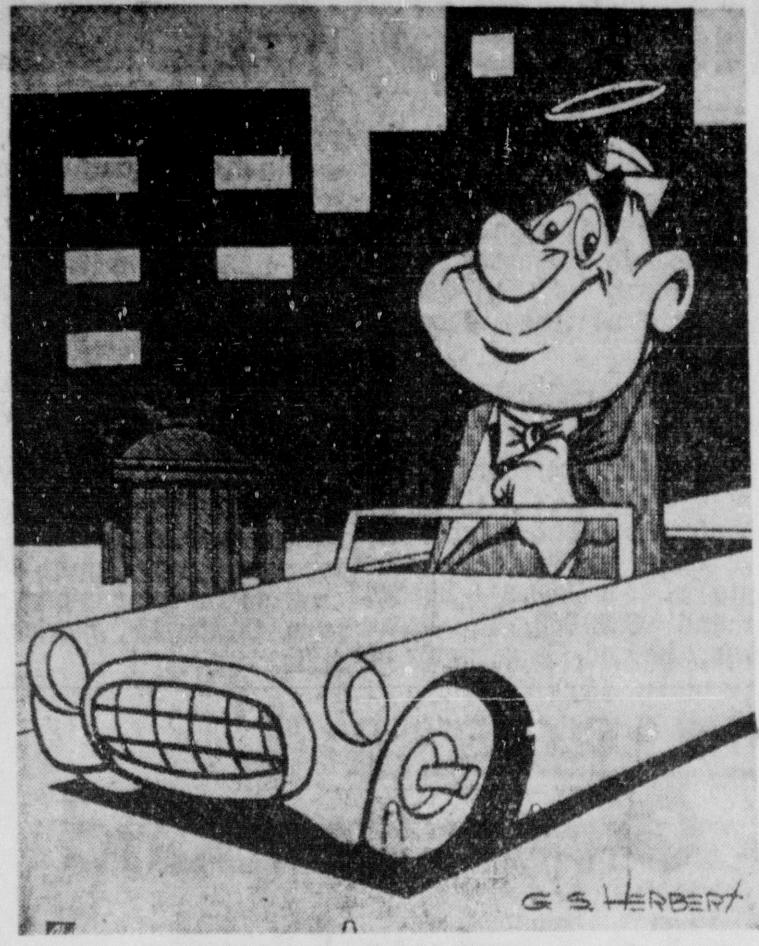

Pott never has finished better than seventh on the PGA circuit, that being in the Houston Open last winter.

Only two strokes behind at 132 was veteran Bo Winingar who shot successive 66s. Grouped at 136 were Arnold Palmer, Billy Maxwell and Walker Cupper Jack Nicklaus, 19-year-old Ohio State sophomore.

Cleveland remained a game in front in the American League race with a 11-5 decision; Baltimore moved into second place by sweeping a twin-night doubleheader from Detroit, 12-7 and 4-1; New York climbed into a third-place tie with Chicago by topping the White Sox, 8-4, and Washington licked Kansas City, 8-4.

THIRD SHUTOUT

But the really big men in yesterday's victory were pitcher Mike McCormick and outfielder Jackie Brandt.

Decathlon Title Won By Formosan

KINGSBURG (AP)—A 25-year-old Formosan is the national AAU decathlon king today after one of the greatest duels in the long history of the ancient event.

Nationalist China's C. K. Yang won the javelin and pole vault and tied in the high hurdles last night to eke out a five point victory over Dave Edstrom, a University of Oregon sophomore. Yang totaled 7,549 points to 7,544 for Edstrom.

But Yang, a UCLA student, was far from satisfied with his performance.

"I'm disappointed because I didn't break a record," he said after the meet. "I wrenched a small muscle in my back during the last two weeks of practice."

"This," he said, with a disgusted grimace, "is the result."

Yang, a rugged, wiry 6 feet 2 inches, weighs 177 pounds. He plans to specialize in the hurdles and broad jump at UCLA.

"I think I'll take up the pole vault, too," he grinned after vaulting 14 feet 2 1/2 inches, a Nationalist China record.

The blond, sturdy Edstrom, 20, gave it all he had.

Yang, Edstrom and Mike Herman of the New York Pioneer Club, who finished third, will represent the United States in the Pan American Games at Chicago Aug. 27.

Yang, Edstrom and world decathlon champ Rafer Johnson will face a Russian decathlon team in a meet at Philadelphia July 18-19.

Johnson did not compete here—his home town—because of a back injury suffered in a recent auto accident. His world record, set in 1955 at Kingsburg, is 7,985 points.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Jet Crashes Kill 4

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—At least four men died as two jet planes crashed on opposite sides of San Antonio within 40 minutes last night.

Firemen, able to reach the flaming wreckage only on foot, sent back word that three perished in an RB66—a reconnaissance bomber—which hit on top of a steep, rocky hill about 20 miles northwest of here.

A fourth man died in a T33 trainer which also burned after crashing one mile north of Laverton, 26 miles southeast of San Antonio. The planes crashed about 40 miles apart.

New Hoffa Promise

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two and a half years after the Senate Labor-Management Committee began investigating him, James R. Hoffa still promises to drive racketeers from office in his Teamsters Union.

His story is the same—he'll do it in his own good time.

Hoffa told the committee yesterday he has the power and the authority to do it now, but will not act until the committee ends its investigation.

His promise drew a scornful retort from Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.).

"I have no hope of your ever cleaning up the union, Mr. Hoffa," Kennedy said.

ODD HABITS OF SARDINES ON AGENDA

LA JOLLA (AP)—What made sardines come back in California waters in the 1958-59 fishing season, when more than 100,000 tons were taken?

Will they come again in 1959-60?

These are questions that will be considered at a meeting July 28-30 at Scripps Institution of Oceanography.

The occasion will be a sardine conference of research workers and officials associated with the California cooperative oceanic fisheries investigation, sponsored by the California State Marine Research Committee.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE

—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Q M M F, P D X J M N X T M J J L Y H T-

C P X F, J M N X C O L Y F C Y P Q N M Z G

—J H K P M Y.

Yesterday's Cryptogram: IN THE BEGINNING GOD CREATED THE HEAVEN AND THE EARTH—GENESIS.

Compromise Tax Bill Holds Promise Of Some Relief

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A compromise tax bill holds prospects of a cut next year in the federal 10 per cent tax on telephone charges and in rail, bus and airplane ticket taxes.

Senate and House conferees yesterday approved the compromise bill which continues Korean wartime corporate in-

Mercury Soars Across U. S. As Humid Heat Grips East

By ASSOCIATED PRESS The mercury soared today as hot, muggy weather clung to many areas.

There was little relief on the weather map. Slight cooling poured over the central Rockies and the Weather Bureau said scattered showers were likely during the afternoon for some regions.

A humid blanket gripped nearly all of the eastern half of the country last night.

To the west, high night time readings and heavy thunderstorms prevailed over portions of the northern plains.

come and excise tax rates for another year. These taxes drop to pre-Korean levels at midnight Tuesday unless a new law is enacted.

The conferees sent back to the Senate and House a bill which would, in its immediate effect, simply continue taxes without change until June 30, 1960. Then a decision on changing tax rates would again come before Congress.

Conferees abandoned Senate-passed proposals which would have (1) repealed the 4 per cent stock dividend income credit, (2) repealed the entire 10 per cent communications and passenger transportation taxes, and (3) increased federal welfare assistance grants to the states by 142 million dollars a year.

The House bill was limited to continuation of the 52 per cent tax on corporation income and present rates on automobiles, auto parts and accessories, cigarettes, liquor, wine and beer.

In compromising their differences, Senate-House conferees proposed cutting in half the passenger transportation tax effective June 30, 1960, provided Congress does not vote to continue the full rate before then.

And they agreed to the repeal of the 10 per cent communications tax as it applies to local phone charges, also effective June 30, 1960. The tax on long distance phone tolls and other communication charges would not be affected.

The effect was to place these proposed tax rates on a temporary year-to-year basis.

Hawaii Votes

On Statehood; Approval Sure

HONOLULU (UPI)—Hawaiians voted on statehood today and picked candidates for their first state election a month hence.

From all sides came predictions that the islanders would give an overwhelming "yes" to admit the mid-Pacific island chain as the 50th state.

They had done so in two earlier plebiscites and have been pleading for statehood for half a century.

The Hawaii Statehood Commission said its straw vote last week showed 12-to-1 approval for admission to the Union.

The simultaneous primary reflected the multi-racial makeup of the islands.

Candidates of Asian descent predominated on the primary list and the first state election July 28 is expected to send at least one Oriental to Congress.

Hawaii will elect two U.S. senators and one representative next month. Five of the eight leading aspirants are of Japanese or Chinese ancestry.

Election officials predicted the combined statehood referendum and party primary would bring out 85 per cent of the nearly 170,000 eligible voters.

BEAUTIES ENTER FINALS TONIGHT IN MISS CALIFORNIA CONTEST

SANTA CRUZ (UPI)—The big night has arrived for Miss California contestants.

Final talent and bathing suit judging will be held here tonight, with Miss California of 1959 to be named immediately afterward. The winner will be crowned in a special ceremony tomorrow.

The first half of the two-part judging was held last night in talent and bathing suit categories. Seventeen girls competed. Fifteen more will parade in front of judges and viewers tonight.

Jo Ellen Fisher, representing Contra Costa County, was yesterday's talent winner. The 18-year-old blonde from San Pablo did an acrobatic ballet.

A pair of Southern California brunettes tied in bathing suit competition, Miss Los Angeles, Loretta Joyce Fountain, 18, of Van Nuys and Miss Santa Barbara, Nancy Patricia Fish, 17.

Five finalists will be selected from the original 32 before the final decision is made tonight.

Long Running Louisiana Under Doctors' Care

COVINGTON, La. (UPI)—Gov. Earl K. Long, out of mental hospitals for the first time in almost a month, ran the state of Louisiana today from a motel, under the watchful eyes of three psychiatrists.

The psychiatrists made it plain that they will stand for no foolishness from Long and ordered seven or eight days of rest with only essential visitors for him.

Even so, Long was expected to take revenge on others he regarded as responsible for putting a man who has "never been insane a second in my life."

That estimate of his mental condition was Long's own. The three psychiatrists said they thought he ought to still be in the hospital.

Long forced his way out of the Southeast Louisiana State (mental) Hospital yesterday by firing the director of that hospital and the director of all state-owned hospitals.

He filled their positions with men who signed a statement that he was sane and there was nothing for Dist. Judge Robert D. Jones to do but order him released.

As soon as Long got out, he sacked John Nick Brown, superintendent of state police. Politicians feared there were others on his firing list.

Then, on his own, Long called Dr. Robert Heath, Dr. Charles Watkins and Dr. Victor Lief to examine him.

The governor said he would follow the doctors' instructions. "I wouldn't have sent for them if I had intended otherwise," he added.

Youth Gets Jail In Fatal Crash

A 24-year-old University senior from Sausalito was sentenced to 50 days in jail yesterday by a Berkeley-Albany Municipal Court judge on a negligent driving charge stemming from a March 18 fatal accident in Berkeley.

Mayo B. Young was also placed on probation for three years by Judge Redmond C. Staats, and had his driver's license revoked.

The charge was the result of an accident in which a car driven by Young crashed into a tree. His passenger, James L. Kendall, a fellow University of California student, was killed.

Economic Agency Long-Established In Many States

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—In opening its new Economic Development Agency next September, California will become one of the last states in the union to establish such an office.

The idea of a state research bureau to promote industrial growth and expansion, much as the Commerce Department does on a national level, first came to light during the depression-ridden 1930s.

A few New England states took up the idea and then during that period and shortly afterward 30 states set up agencies.

In 1950 the movement again took hold, with 17 offices established since then.

As outlined by Gov. Edmund G. Brown, California's new agency would be somewhat of a state clearing house for research data to be supplied to local communities. Cost would be about $500,000 a year.

MARIN ET CETERA

By Harry Craft

Et Cetera's 'Cuisine De Menage' Is Same Home Cooking As Ever

Not since the days when I was courting my wife and it was considered smart to carry away a memento from each of our dining excursions have we been so well stocked with menus.

Whereas those early souvenirs were usually acquired surreptitiously we are now privileged pack rats. Marin County menus are part of my stock in trade for a weekly restaurant column and as they are making them larger all the time I would hate to try concealing a 12 by 16 inch folder inside my coat.

Not only larger but it seems to me their content is more impressive than in the old days. The tendency is toward the use of flowery catch phrases — often in French. Thus, pork chops with apple fritters become "cotelettes de porc pane." Sweetbreads may be listed as "sweetbreads a la Serge" or "ris de veau dore."

I suggested to my wife that our simple home fare might be elevated in the esteem of occasional guests who drop in for pot luck if we were to dress it up with high-sounding titles. Lamb stew, for instance, could be served as "ragout d'agneau menagere." Certainly our old smoky barbecue standby would carry more prestige as "boeuf broye a la fumee" than as hamburger.

"Listen," said she, "I haven't the time to think up fancy names for dinner. Besides, my high school teacher only passed me in French because I promised not to take it another term or mention to anyone where I learned it."

My own knowledge was even less comprehensive, gleaned from such scholarly texts as La Vie Parisienne and the labels from old wine bottles.

Still, she didn't rule out the idea altogether, and got more into the spirit of it when I referred to something she'd done with a left-over fricassee as "depouille de poulet aux champignons."

The effect on our friends was not entirely what I had counted on. I guess they thought we were putting on airs. Yet, my wife's cooking was all that it should be and if what we chose to call rote de boeuf cuisinere looked suspiciously like an ordinary pot-roast I didn't notice that they attacked it less heartily.

The novelty of the thing wore thin when my wife's varied food combinations became too much even for my fertile imagination, and I had to decide between a course in French or going hungry.

The payoff came one morning when she was a little late preparing breakfast and I was hard pressed to keep an early appointment.

The dish she set before me was rather unusual. I hadn't seen anything exactly like it on our table before but then she is always experimenting and I am always sampling. It consisted of two slabs of something dark brown and mottled and had an odd sweetish taste.

"Like it?" she asked.

"Well, yes and no," I said, wiping my mouth hurriedly to be on my way. "What is it?"

"You might call it 'holocaust de pain grille Francais,'" she replied wickedly.

By the time I figured that one out I was half way to the city.

Darn these foreign names anyway! Why couldn't she just say she had burned the French toast?

Dr. John Jefferson Canoles Saw Church
Grow From 200 To 900 In His 31 Years

(Editor's note: Dr. John Jefferson Canoles, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in San Rafael, will retire June 30. Born in Baltimore, he attended the University of Oregon where he graduated in 1921 in languages and Greek. He was graduated from the San Francisco Theological Seminary in 1925. Now as his career in the pulpit draws near an end, here is the story of a recent reception in his honor, and some of his plans for the future.)

By HAZEL WISHARD BROWN

Following the eleven o'clock services, June 7, the Women's Society served at a reception honoring the highly respected and beloved pastor, Dr. John Jefferson Canoles and his wife and help-mate of 42 years, Violet Stolle Canoles. The Canoles observed their anniversary June 14.

The reception marked the 31st anniversary of Dr. Canoles' San Rafael pastorate.

The 65-year-old pastor's resignation was made on the advice of his physician following a series of operations and periods of illness.

THE CHURCH membership has increased from 200 to 900 members during his pastorate with present duties more than his health capacity permits.

Dr. Canoles, advised he will regain his health by a "change of pace," is looking forward to further church activity, and a more quiet and restful residence in Novato.

He looks forward to more time for fishing "and also anticipate" better "fishing" — his favorite relaxation. Just what will be the extent of his new endeavors remains to be worked out as health returns.

Dr. Canoles is a native of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Canoles came from Eugene, Ore.

Dr. and Mrs. Canoles were escorted to the reception hall by Mr. and Mrs. William P. Murray.

THE ELTERS, church dignitaries, and visiting pastors, church choir, hundreds of members and friends, with many young people of the church, welcomed the Canoles in a flower filled social hall.

All was a fitting testimonial to their retirement.

Mrs. Canoles was lovely in spring attire with orchid corsage. Both she and Dr. Canoles responded graciously to the remarks of Dr. Earl Young, who presented a check to be used in their new Novato home. There the Canoles expect to receive friends after July first.

It seemed fitting to choose a name for the new home to be known as "The Wee House."

MRS. CANOLES responded to Dr. Young's presentation in her usual gracious manner. She closed with a brief description of the new home taken from a poem, "On Moving Into a New Home," written by Betty Isler . . . as she said:

"Our home is so modern,
The latest, the most,
Except for two fixtures,
The Hostess and Host..."

DOORWAY TO SERVICE—Dr. John Jefferson Canoles, for 31 years pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of San Rafael, stands with his wife, Violet, on the threshold of the church following reception marking his retirement.

During the 31 years Dr. Canoles has occupied the San Rafael pulpit worshippers have observed the pastor's hair turn from reddish blonde to beautiful snow white.

THE PASTOR nominating committee includes Glen N. Sleezer, chairman; Willis Elliott, vice chairman; Mrs. K. G. Walkmeister, secretary; Mrs. John Bagshaw, assistant secretary; Mrs. Jessie Leavell; Miss Janet Pemble; John Semorile; Ferard Leicester; Sylvester Fickbohm; Leonard Murphy. Suggestions have been welcomed from members of the congregation.

At the present time an evaluation of the church property and membership is being compiled. This information will be tabulated at the central office of the Ministerial Relations General Assembly. It is hoped Dr. Canoles' successor will be named within the next few months.

There was a lighted candle in the sanctuary of the church for each year of Dr. Canoles' services. There were many expressions of gratitude paid the couple by speakers and worshippers alike.

Speakers were Dr. Gurdon C. Oxtoby, guest minister and dean of the seminary, who acted as moderator; Leonard H. Murphy, who represented the congregation; Mayor John F. McInnis, speaking for the community, and the Rev. Thomas Holden, Dr. Canoles' friend and contemporary of college days.

Dr. Holden made his remarks quite personal speaking directly to "John Jefferson and Violet Canoles." At times his voice almost broke. Many in the congregation had moist eyes.

The speaker gave the promise of faith, love and justice. He was confident restoration in health would bring many happy years of service to the Canoles. Resignation from the local pulpit was accepted in a happier vein.

Dr. Canoles assured his friends his retirement would include added service to God and country.

DR. CANOLES has baptized infants, officiated at marriages of the same young people, comforted them in sickness and sorrow, rejoiced with them in joy — served as pastor and counselor in any problems to be met.

Early each Sunday morning of his pastorate Dr. Canoles has visited the pews occupied by many who have gone to their eternal reward. There he has said a prayer for their families.

It was fitting, then, that in his concluding remarks the kindly respected pastor should quote freely from the Bible.

Many will remember the Canoles as the Vesper bells chime each evening. These will welcome his successor and the many guest speakers from the Seminary who round out the rich full life the Marin church offer.

Above the busy hum of traffic and street noises one hears the eventide chimes in San Rafael and San Anselmo. Meditation, inspiration, call to worship . . . hope eternal . . . no need here to display highway signs which are frequently seen in other states — "The family that prays together stays together."

A fitting inscription to Dr. and Mrs. Canoles would be "Thank you" — "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow you all the days of your lives; and you will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

ANCIENT ART—Mrs. Sashiko Hattori, demonstrates the ceremony of making thick, green tea as Zen Buddhists made it centuries ago. Above, she dips long-handled hishaku into iron kettle containing boiling water. Kettle sits atop charcoal brazier. She will perform the ancient rite next Saturday night at the Marin Art and Garden Fair.

The Ceremony Of Serenity

Making Of Tea Attains Majesty In Exotic Ritual Of Cha-No-Yu

In America, soggy bags drip onto clean tablecloths as one prepares to drink tea in the average home.

In Japan, the making and serving of tea is, to underestimate the matter, different. It attains unparalleled majesty and grace in the exotic ritual known as Cha-No-yu.

The tea ceremony, as Westerners call it, will be enacted for Marin Art and Garden Fair visitors next Saturday night, July 4 at 8 o'clock in the Northgate area.

It will be demonstrated by Mrs. Sashiko Hattori, 44, of Kokura, Japan, who is visiting friends, the Richard Caseys of Larkspur. Assisting her will be Miss Yoshiko Kuwatani of Tiburon.

TO THE UNSCHOOLED occidental eye, the tea ceremony appears extremely complicated and overly encumbered with rules of protocol.

But on closer observation, one is apt to be charmed by the beauty of the utensils, the graceful movements of the principals and a strange atmosphere that can best be described as mysterious and exotic.

A clue as to the significance of the tea ceremony in Japanese life comes from the late Okakura Kakuzo, curator of oriental art at the Boston Museum, in his "The Book of Tea."

"TEA WITH," he said, "became more than an idealization of the form of drinking; it is a religion of the art of life."

A Japanese author on the subject, Yasunosuke Fukukita, says of the ceremony: "There is an underlying subtle aestheticism, with manifold bearings upon religion, literature and philosophy, as well as the arts and crafts."

Mrs. Casey, Mrs. Hattori's hostess in America, speaking of tea ceremonies she attended while an Air Force wife in Japan, recalls that conversation of the guests was always directed toward the aesthetic.

"One could speak only of beautiful things," Mrs. Casey says. "Subjects that pertained to nature — flowers, the garden, objects of art. One never discussed money, clothes, people or anything mundane. And because of this, there was always a marvelous serenity of mood in the gathering."

SATURDAY'S demonstration will be a highly condensed version of the rite which normally takes up to two hours.

The ceremony will proceed like this:

Miss Hattori, dressed in an elaborate red kimono, kneels in front of a tiered table and a brazier.

What is heating in a black iron kettle over the charcoal. She uses a long-handled dipper to take water from the kettle to warm the tea bowl.

With dainty movements, the petite woman caresses the tea bowl. When the bowl is warm, she discards the water, wipes the bowl dry.

THEN SHE USES a thin bamboo wand with a spoon-like tip to measure the green tea powder in the bowl.

(A frequent traveler to Japan, Mrs. Forence Patterson, proprietor of Kentfield's Bookshop-Marin, recalls that the powdered tea used for the ceremony "is very expensive, perhaps $80 to $95 a pound, and its use is necessarily confined to higher income families.")

Finally, the dipper is plunged again into the kettle and the hot water poured over the tea.

Mrs. Hattori now picks up a tiny bamboo whisk. She gently whips the tea, and it is ready.

The single tea bowl is passed to all persons in the group — usually five or seven but always an odd number. Each person holds the bowl in the palm of his left hand, cupping his right hand around the side as if to protect it.

On passing the bowl, the passer and recipient bow to each other.

The taste and appearance of the tea are unique. The brew appears to be like a thick, dark green pea soup.

Its taste is unlike any tea or beverage in the western world. It reminds one of grass or bamboo. It is slightly bitter. But as the novice sips again he is reminded of nature, and of beauty. And his mood becomes one of serenity and contentment.

OFFERING OF TEA—Mrs. Hattori bows as if offering tea bowl to guest in front of her. In foreground is many-spiked bamboo whisk used to whip the tea. Resting on top of the tea container is chabishaku or tea ladle used to measure green tea powder (2½ ladles for Mrs. Hattori's recipe). In Japan, Mrs. Hattori's long apprenticeship has placed her on the next-to-top level of the hierarchy of Cha-no-yu.

HOLDING THE CUP—The cup used for serving the Cha-no-yu brand of tea is actually a bowl, large enough to be passed to all the guests as a loving cup. Here Hattori cradles it in the traditional manner, her left hand underneath, her right hand turning the bowl so that the design faces the guest who is to receive it. When the guest starts to drink the tea, he must turn the bowl again so that the design faces the others. (Independent-Journal Photos by Dick Steinheimer)

DON'T LET THE BID BUG BITE

I did not want antiques and such—
The cast-off treasures that are sold.
A new house needs the modern touch;
So I have said; so I was told.

But then one day by accident
I saw a mellowed, pewter vase,
And thought, as I signaled assent,
We want some treasures in our place.

And now I gaze, bewitched, enthralled,
At all its lovely dignity.
—I wonder if the girl has called
About that teapot, meant for me!

SEA PALM (Postelsia) — The Sea Palm is a form of kelp found growing 2 ft. or so in height on our most exposed rocky shores. It is constantly battered by the waves but its effective "holdfast," or root-like means of attachment, and its stout but pliant stems topped by flat streamers enable it to thrive in the constant rush and pounding of the ocean waves. You will find it, for example, as a picturesque feature of the rocky projections at McClure's Beach. (From Out-of-Doors in Marin, copyright by M. F. Austin)

From Controversy To Calm

Author Stanton Coblenz Ranges From Giant Issues To A Lowly Weed

Mild-voiced, white-haired Stanton A. Coblenz of Mill Valley has been writing on controversial subjects for a great many years. Career poet, book reviewer and author of more than 30 books, Coblenz frequently takes issue with modern man's complacency with his civilization.

Latest of these is his "The Long Road to Humanity," a substantial book on a monumental topic, which took 20 years' research and one of writing. The author has tackled such broad topics before. He wrote "Decline of Man" in 1925. His "Pageant of Man," a book-length epic poem, written in 1933, is now in its third edition. His latest book of poetry, "Out of Many Songs," was published in 1958.

ANOTHER MAJOR project is his quarterly poetry magazine, "Wings," which he publishes in his Mill Valley home at 6 Mirabel avenue, also home of his Wings Press. Wings' 25 years of continuous publication sets a record for "little magazines."

He is author of four anthologies of verse and contributor to many others, as well as to many magazines. His prose versatility ranges from major philosophic issues to social studies to science fiction to California history. His "Villains and Vigilantes," published in 1936, was reissued two years ago.

GOING ON 63, he is as full of enthusiasm for his new book, in the same general field, as if it were his first.

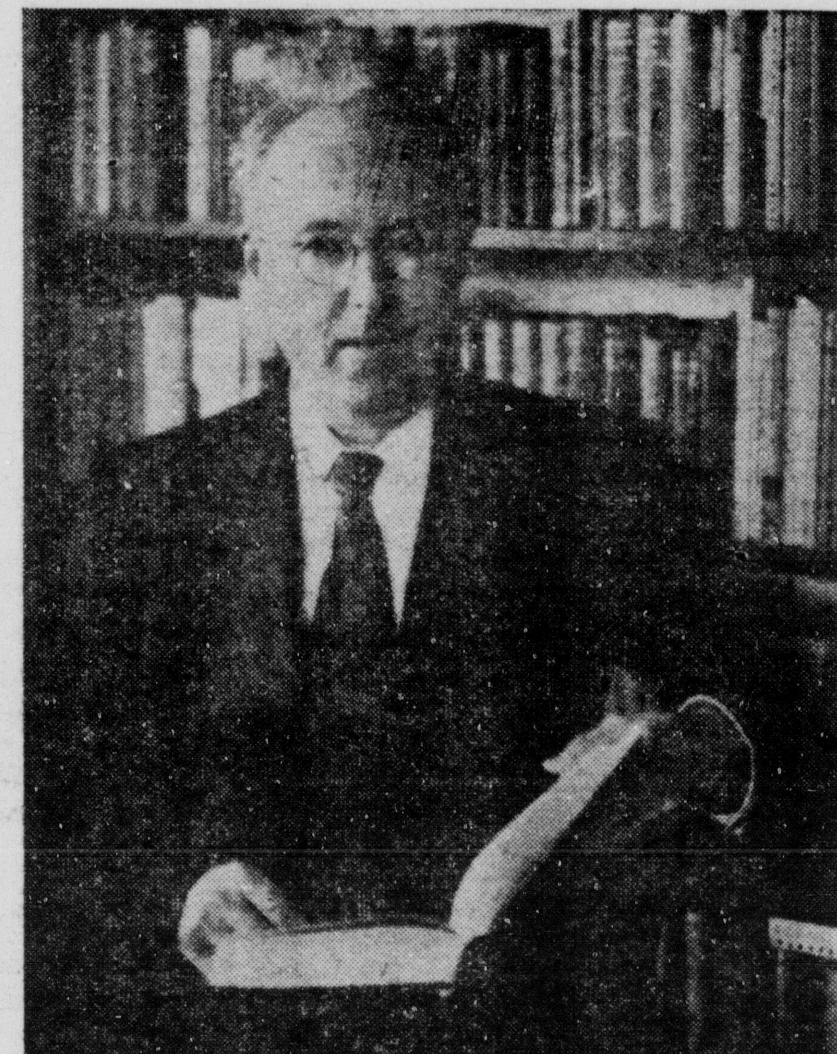

His physical energies are likewise brisk. Almost daily, he and Mrs. Coblenz walk from their aerie off Ethel avenue to Mill Valley's post office.

It was, in fact, the natural beauty of Mill Valley that lured him away from his 18-year stint on the book reviewing staff of the New York Times and other papers to return West.

Coblenz was a native San Franciscan, but spent most of his boyhood in Stockton. On graduating he received a call from the managing editor of the San Francisco Examiner, who offered him a job writing daily inspirational poems. He held this post from 1919 to 1920, when he went to New York. Here he met and married Flora Bachrach, she who accompanies him on his daily walks.

COBLENTZ' RENOWN is widespread, and one of his staunchest literary champions is Lord Dunsay, who wrote the preface to his reissued "Pageant of Man." Publisher Thomas Yoseloff has issued "The Long Road to Humanity" in 10,000 copies, "unusually large for a book of this sort," Coblenz reports. Early sales have been very good.

Unlike many writers, Coblenz is not a writer on a single theme. His cosmos is one of resurgent life as well as grim nemesis. He may antagonize the complacent or terrify the timid, but on another page, in another book, he offers the same reader respite and peace.

On The Growth Of Humanity: 'Thumbs Up Or Thumbs Down?

THE LONG ROAD TO HUMANITY, by Stanton A. Coblenz; Thomas Yoseloff, $6, 494 pp.

Reviewed By

DOROTHY SLATTERY

Standing on the threshold of the space age, it is imperative to pause in the midst of our rapid moving machine motored lives and examine history to see what happened in the past and then turn scrutinizing eyes upon ourselves, our civilization, aims, shortcomings, achievements and know where we are and what is to be done.

This is what Mr. Coblenz was striving for in penning the question: "Is it thumbs up or down?"

Humanity is the outgrowth of moral responsibility and conscience. These are the factors that determine the turning up or down of the thumbs.

He has written a thought provoking, controversial study of man's inhumanity to man.

He recalls the brutality and gory details of the blood spilling that has been occurring since the primitive left his cave in search of food. We follow along on the roads of human sacrifice, slavery, war, religious persecution, racial prejudice, child labor and the impossible working conditions that sprang from the Industrial Revolution and the infant capitalism that evolved with the birth of the machine.

It is a bleak, black world that comes alive under the pen of Coblenz . . . too black and dreary for this reviewer. Too much emphasis on thumbs down.

MORE TIME might have been spent on the contributions of the Middle Ages and less on the emotional writing depicting the Inquisition to be the most important event in the period of time between the Dark Ages and the dawn of modernism.

What of the birth of universities, the great paintings, development of music, the studies in philosophy and the beginning steps of literature?

What a depressing state (and possibly an unfair slanting): A world hung in the black cloth of morning from the dark ages, through the Middle Ages into the Renaissance!

WHAT OF THE teachings of Christ and the men who have kept the call for love and moral responsibility alive in the hearts of man for over two thousand years? What of the Eastern spiritual leaders, Buddha and Confucius, who called for fair play and instilled morals into the traditions of their followers? And, going back into ancient history, what of the Ten Commandments demanding man to respect his fellow man and his possessions?

Men have been erring and breaking the rules of humanity from the beginning of time. More should have been said of the instigators of philosophies that have been combating the weaknesses of human nature for thousand of years. The road to humanity is not as dependent on Voltaire, Rousseau and the other writers of the Age of Enlightenment as the author points out.

The road to humanity is — and there is a wide difference in meanings.

MAN HAS MADE great progress, as the author cites, in his labor laws, social welfare programs, etc., but it is yet to be decided what effects the New Deal or the trends of socialism will do to man in his quest for humanity.

"The Long Road to Humanity," as this review has tried to illustrate, is controversial, but it is written in the enjoyable literary style of an artist by a writer who has a great store of historical knowledge. It will take a reader with an interest and tangible appreciation of history to enjoy the book, for possibly the author intended conjecture to make his readers think.

DONNER SUMMIT—A gnarled juniper clings to live amid the boulders overlooking Donner Lake, with Mt. Rose in the distance. This rugged wilderness is one of the many locales for field trips from the National Audubon Society Camp in the Sierras. Trips are by station wagon from comfortable lodge quarters. (Audubon Photo)

'The Web Of Life'

Audubon Camp At Donner Summit Offers Entre To World Of Nature

Both its history and scenic grandeur combine to make the Donner Summit area a favorite vacation spot for hundreds each summer. Add to this the stimulation of outdoor field trips conducted by experienced naturalists and you have the ideal combination for a never-to-be-forgotten vacation.

Each summer since 1948 the National Audubon Society has headquartered its California camp at Sugar Bowl Lodge in the heart of the Donner Summit region near Lake Tahoe. Station wagons are used to transport campers to particular spots of interest where the plant life and its associated animals, soil types and weather conditions can be observed to best advantage. Whether it be the pinyon-juniper association of the Great Basin desert region south of Reno or the stately Sugar Pines of the moist Transition Zone lower on the west slope of the Sierra Nevada, each area visited reveals new secrets to explain the interdependences of living things. Indeed, the program featured at the Audubon Camp of California might well be titled, "The Web of Life."

CAMPERS COME from all over the country to participate in these two-week sessions, some of them from as far away as our new states of Hawaii and Alaska. Many Marinites have attended. Besides variety in geography, the fifty adult campers that make up each session represent the gamut of backgrounds and occupations. All are united, however, by their interest in the outdoor world which they explore in smaller groups of 10 or 12 each day while at camp.

The five naturalists who lead these field trips are carefully chosen for their ability to interpret natural processes with both academic authority and youthful enthusiasm. Skilled in some field of natural science: whether it be botany, mammalogy, ornithology, entomology or geology, each staff member aims always to demonstrate how his subject relates to each of the other. This is done at all times out-of-doors with living examples in their natural environment.

If the yellow-bellied marmot fails to appear, at least there has been the fun of looking, and the newly acquired knowledge of his habits learned from animal signs makes a far more lasting experience than ever could be gained from a caged animal or a stuffed specimen.

THESE FIELD explorations are made all the most enjoyable by the absence of house-keeping or camping chores. Delicious, hot meals are served family style in the Lodge dining room, while a crew of high school boys wait on table and do up the dishes. The Lodge is also the locale of a well-stocked library for reference purposes, a store for the purchase of nature study aids and a resource room for additional helps to teachers and youth leaders.

Combining a superb mountain setting with the fascination of outdoor discoveries, the Audubon Camp of California offers what can truly be called a "vacation with a future." Information about the 1959 summer season and optional college credit can be obtained by writing the National Audubon Society, 2426 Bancroft Way, Berkeley 4, California.

Red Cross Home Service Extends Round-The-Clock Compassion, Aid and it was discovered that an organization with both military and civilian contacts could relieve a serviceman's problems at home. The branch of the Red Cross that was organized to work with families of servicemen came to known as Home Service.

Answering it, she learns from the sister of a serviceman stationed in Europe that his mother was killed and his wife critically injured in an automobile accident. His two small children are temporarily with relatives.

The worker calls hospital, sheriff's office and physician to verify facts, and wires the information to an Overseas Red Cross Field Director. By 10 a.m. the same morning, the serviceman is on his way home. The Red Cross Home Service has again shown how it responds to calls of help with calm and thoughtful efficiency.

HOME SERVICE workers of local Red Cross chapters all over the country help families of men and women in the armed forces, and veterans and their families when personal and family problems arise.

Red Cross service to families of men in the armed forces began in 1916 when the National Guard was called to serve on the Mexican Border. It was developed on a nation-wide basis when the United States entered World War I. A serviceman's problems of sickness and emergency need at home create frustration and harrassment for him because he can't do anything about them.

Morale and effectiveness of the man at the front are lowered by difficulties at home, volunteer social welfare aide, reported about a deceased serviceman's wife from Colorado who needed aid—both financial and legal.

Affected were several organizations in the immediate community, and as the case unfolded one was impressed with the intricate interweaving of these agencies and their cooperative efficiency in providing help for a woman and her children in desperate need.

THESE DISCUSSIONS, always confidential, are to illustrate the teamwork of these local organizations, and to maintain their smooth effectiveness.

NORMAN THE DOORMAN. Story and pictures by Don Freeman; Viking Press, ages 4-7, 64 pp., $3.

Reviewed By
LEE ADAMS

By day Norman was a doorman (doormouse, to be precise) in front of a mouse hole which led to the basement of the Majestic Museum of Art where many art treasures were stored, or rather on exhibit for discriminating rodents and the like. By night Norman dabbled in art himself.

How Norman entered his wire statue in competition with the human artists upstairs and won the prize may remind you of something you've already read besides the newspapers, namely, "Pet of the Met" by the same author.

Norman's variation on Maestro Pterini's theme suffers somewhat from seeming slightly secondhand, a little less fresh. Nevertheless, the pictures in full color are tops and the story is fun. What a pleasant way to suffer!

AN EDGE OF THE FOREST by Agnes Smith, illus. by Roberta Moynihan; Viking Press, ages 11-15, 192 pp., $3.

Reviewed by L. A.

Here is the strangely beautiful tale of a little black lamb lost and alone in the forest where, according to his mother's last warning, "a thousand deaths" awaited.

A young shepherd, an old woman, a black leopardess with a crippled paw, a doe, an owl and other creatures of the wild find themselves, to their own amazement, committed to a compact based on their mutual concern for the lamb rather than survival of the fittest.

That deadly enemies should find a bond in the fate of a helpless lamb seems not only possible but probable, so poetically persuasive is the telling of the tale.

The author never talks down to her young readers, though in talking to them, she may at times talk over their heads. For the most part, there is a delicate balance between the wide soft brush of the implicit and the strong thin line of the explicit. Overall is the greenness of the forest, the atmosphere of life renewing itself. One of the most artistic and compelling books we've encountered.

BROWNIES — HURRY! by Gladys L. Adshead, pictures by Velma Illsley, Henry Z. Walck, Inc.; ages 4-7, 72 pp., $2.50.

"Get your paintpots. Hurry, HURRY, HURRY," yelled Biggest Brownie, and the brownies were off to paint the leaves for autumn, the getting ready for spring time. "What's spring?" asked Smallest Brownie.

Some of the wonder of Smallest Brownie's discovery is lost. An inspired conception is not matched in execution with a more distinctly individual style.

SWING ME, SWING TREE by Marcia Bliss Marks, three-color drawings by David Berger, Little, Brown and Company; ages 4 and up, 32 pp., $2.50.

The pictures exquisitely epitomize all the fun and freedom of swinging—on a rope, in a hammock, in an old rubber tire, on the garden gate, and most especially in the willow tree.

The verse, by comparison, is facile and undistinguished. The text remains on the ground while the pictures soar.

PABLO PAINTS A PICTURE by Warren Miller, drawings by Edward Sorel, Little, Brown and Company; ages 4-8, 32 pp., $2.75.

Reviewed by L. A.

Pablo begins to paint a picture on somebody's fence, and practically everybody in the city turns out to watch him. It begins to rain, but the gray city does not seem quite so dreary because the sun is shining brightly in Pablo's picture.

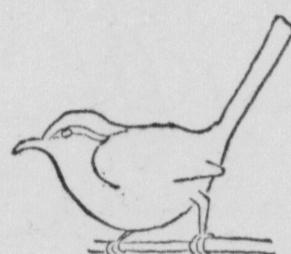

Not particularly compelling as a story due primarily to the limitations of the "action and observation method." The action is stated in bold black type. Comments and questions directed to the reader about the action are in regular type. Each caption and its accompanying commentary are graphically illustrated in complementary drawings. Since the method seeks to draw children into conversation about the story, it precludes drawing them into the story. Young readers are restricted to the role of "people watching people watching Pablo."

Talk-about books are the rage now, and this certainly is one of the most original of its kind in regard to method. Myself, I'd rather be Babar than talk about Pablo, particularly since Pablo's experience is uneventful and his personality unexplored compared to that of the colorful pachyderm.

HELLO DAY, poems by Dorothy Aldis, pictures by Susan Elson, G. P. Putnam's Sons; ages 6-10, 64 pp., $2.75.

Reviewed by L. A.

This beloved author may not lift her young readers to new literary heights, but she does make them feel exactly understood right where they are, a very sunshiney and important feeling.

BEWICK WREN—Staying in Marin all year, the sweet voiced Bewick Wren is a delightful little 4 1/2 in. bird. With a deep warm brown above, whitish color below, prominent white eyebrow line, and up-tilted tail, he is readily recognized. Nesting in almost any hole, cranny, or box, two broods are raised from April to June. The Winter Wren, smaller and darker, is most often seen in deep forest shade. The House Wren is lighter in color. (From Out-of-Doors in Marin, copyrighted by M. F. Austin)

Perceptively Mrs. Aldis images for youngsters in their own tongue subjects of such significance to them as finding a bed "exactly right" for a very small doll, a butterfly "as gay as crayons in my box," and dessert.

WHILE MRS. COVERLET WAS AWAY by Mary Nash, Little, Brown and Company; ages 8-12, 144 pp., $3.

Mrs. Coverlet, custodian of the three Persever children, was suddenly called away to Duluth, and the Persever children were left on their own.

In the beginning of the story, the humor of the situation seems contrived and the characters phoney. But, thanks to Malcolm of "the complicated conscience" and the incorrigible, ingenious Toad (short for Theobold), the story finally discovers its wings.

Once the children start bottling "Heather's Temptation," a tasty sauce originally intended to whet a cat's appetite but sold by the Persevers for human consumption, the tale becomes what it was intended to be—light, humorous, and entertaining.

THE GOLDEN PHOENIX by Marius Barbeau, retold by Michael Hornyansky, illustrated by Arthur Price, Henry Z. Walck, Inc.; ages 8-12, 144 pp., $3.

An excellent raconteur retells eight rollicking French-Canadian fairy tales. The original tales told some three hundred years ago by lumberjacks and the like to a largely rustic audience were often crude. The tales as recorded here preserve the mood of lightness and laughter of their original forms and at the same time possess a new and distinguished literary refinement.

In a magical world where all ends well, young readers will meet the jolly, stout-hearted Petit Jean who played a most extraordinary game of hide-and-seek with the Great Sultan; Jacques, the good but small-brained woodcutter; the sly thief of Valenciennes who even outwitted himself; and the naughty Princess of Tombozo whose beauty was marred only by her twelve-inch nose. A delightful book.

JAPANESE TALES AND LEGENDS by Helen and William McAlpine, illustrated by Joan Kiddell-Monroe, ages 8-12, 236 pp., $3.50.

This fascinating collection includes ancient legends regarding the mythical birth of Japan; tales of the Heike, a noble race of warriors, taken from a 12th century epic; and a variety of folk-tales.

Unlike the French-Canadian fairy tales, the Japanese tales are, for the most part, serious and often sombre in tone. Their concern is with instruction as well as entertainment, and the nature of the lessons they teach often precludes the "happily ever after" ending with which we are more familiar.

According to the moral underscored in the story of the final battle of the Heike, it is far better to sacrifice life itself than to live without honor. The tale of Urashima, the fisherboy who forfeited eternal youth in the underwater paradise of the Dragon Princess by a single impulsive act, teaches that human happiness is transient at best. The story of the Old Flowerman, who made the trees bloom with his beloved dog's ashes, touchingly illustrates that one may have to pay a grievous price for understanding and serenity.

All of the tales are embued with a poetic reverence for nature and the ceremony of tradition. Like the woodcutter's wife, young American readers may find their eyes growing "as round as rice bowls" with wonder in a world where the turtle speaks "with turtle dignity," and common sparrows wear kimonos dyed with petals of wild flowers and do classical dances to the samisen with paper parasols.

ONE-TON FEATHER—For all its airy grace this mobile sculpture weighs a ton. It was designed by Farhad Moezzi, San Rafael art teacher and artist, who tries it for size at the Marin Art and Garden Center in Ross, where it will be suspended 20 feet in mid-air from a sturdy oak branch near the entrance to the Marin Society of Artists' exhibit during the fair, July 1 to 5. Moezzi (above) relaxes after one hour's warm work getting the sculpture hung with the assistance of photographer Ken Molino, who made the toss with a U.S. Power Squadron line over the branch. (It took four throws to make it), after which it was hand-hoisted into place. All just for the picture. Procedure will be repeated again at fair time.

Austin Shean, 1929. They were just three of 70 a cappella alumni who joined the 20-voice regular choir for graduation exercises. The reunion was by way of a salute to Clinton Lewis, retiring music instructor. (Jim Kean Photo)

STAR—Gloria Collison of Sausalito turns in a professional performance in the female lead role of "Visit to a Small Planet," currently on stage at the Gate Theatre in Sausalito. Theater also offers children's drama on Saturday afternoons.

'SMALL PLANET'

Flying Saucers And Fandangoes

Flying saucers, Washington political fandagos, and Army entanglements in the halls of the Pentagon all get a thorough working-over in "Visit to a Small Planet." Gore Vidal's comedy enjoying a 5-week run at Sausalito's Gate Playhouse.

Bursting on the Broadway season two years ago where the uproarious comedy settled down for a long run, "Visit to a Small Planet" features Tom Erhardt as the erudite visitor from outer space.

Called "a comedy akin to vaudeville" by playwright Vidal, "Visit to a Small Planet" spot-lights a cast gathered from all over the bay area. Tom Erhardt and Gloria Collison live in Sausalito; Thea Bama, a former Broadway performer, makes her home in Mill Valley and is a student at the College of Marin; A. J. Esta, Mel Dir, Dennis Rosa all hail from San Francisco.

Erhardt was last seen in "Waltz of the Toreadors" for the Sausalito Little Theatre and appeared in summer stock on the east coast before coming to California. In San Francisco he has appeared with the Playhouse Repertory in "Right You Are" and "Androcles and the Lion."

Thea Bama has danced professionally in New York, toured nationally with the American Concert Association, and worked in summer stock in Vermont and New Jersey. Her television appearances have included stints on the Milton Berle and Dave Garroway shows.

A. J. Esta recently played the Henry Fonda role in "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" and was a member of the Actors' Workshop; Dennis Rosa just returned from New York where he worked with Uta Hagen and the Metropolitan Ballet; and Gloria Collison has worked in theatre at the University of New Mexico and San Jose State College.

Directed by Leslie Abbott, "Visit to a Small Planet" features sets by Alex Argiro. The scene designer was highly praised for his constructivist sets for the west coast premiere of "Man with the Golden Arm" and has designed for opera, musical comedy, and serious drama.

Tickets for "Visit to a Small Planet" can be obtained by phoning the theatre box-office, or on the evening of performance.

It isn't far from the pink house
To the big school.
The season was getting late,
October was only a day off.

The delicious crunch of Reminded me that not long

From now,
I too, would be walking up
The hill to the pink house
For the last time.

The cars whizzed by as I
Sat in the old truck,
Dreaming of a football

Amphibious Salamander (What A Mouthful) Makes A Dandy Pet

Salamanders are amphibians with tails. Like all true amphibians they never have claws on their toes or scales on their body. Most of them spend at least part of their lives on land and part in water. They return to water to breed. The eggs are laid in clumps or singly and have a jelly-like coating. Salamanders never have more than four toes on the front feet. They can be kept in terraria as pets and should be fed mealworms and live insects. Although they are rather unattractive as pets go, the larger ones can be rather interesting.

The Giant Salamander is the largest western species, in fact the largest of our land salamanders, and will reach a length of 12 inches. They can be found under moist logs and bark, especially in the dark moist redwood areas of the county. The larvae live in nearby streams during development. The color varies considerably on different specimens. The back is usually dark, brownish or gray, and is mottled with color varying from yellow to a deep reddish orange. The legs are darker and generally solid in color.

Newts are the most attractive and interesting of the salamanders. The adult Eastern Newt will do well in an aquarium while the darker and larger, six to eight inch Western Newt is a land-dweller as an adult and has to be kept in a terrarium. The Western Newt is reddish to dark brown on the back with a paler, yellow or orange, underside. The skin is drier to the touch and has a granular feel. They will be found in mountain ponds and moist woods.

Economically speaking, all are harmless and live almost entirely on worms and insects which makes them beneficial to man.

Biography Of Luke By Caldwell Taylor

DEAR AND GLORIOUS PHYSICIAN, by Taylor Caldwell; Doubleday & Company, Inc.

Reviewed by Lois Owles

Lucanus was the son of freed Greek slaves attached to the household of a Roman nobleman, Diodorus. He was a devoted companion to Rubria, the daughter of the nobleman.

He also admired Keptah, the wise slave doctor, and liked to watch him administer to the patients of the household. They became friends, and Keptah taught him to worship the unknown God who had no image in the temples, and who was kind and forgiving unlike the old Roman and Greek Gods.

When Rubria died, Lucanus rebelled against the unknown God who brought so much suffering to the people. In his grief, he vowed to devote his life to the poor, and, in every way possible, to cheat this unknown God of his vengeance.

After Lucanus' father died, Diodorus educated him, and finally sent him to Alexandria's medical school where he was one of their most handsome and brilliant students.

WHEN HE began his practice, true to his vow, he treated only those who could not afford medical aid. Occasionally, he cured some person instantaneously, even some who seemed to be in the last stages of an incurable illness.

After many years he began to hear rumors that the long predicted Messiah of the unknown God had arrived. He even talked to a number of people who had seen and heard Him. Finally, after much convincing evidence and a fortunate experience of his own, he decided to go to Jerusalem to see Him.

One afternoon there was a darkening and a shuddering of the earth along with other unnatural phenomena; but it passed, and he proceeded with his trip.

As he neared the end of the journey, he came upon his half-brother, Priscus, dying of cancer. Priscus was a soldier and related a story of officiating at the Crucifixion of the Jewish priest called Jesus. He thought that this act had been the cause of his terrible illness. He described the scene to Lucanus in detail.

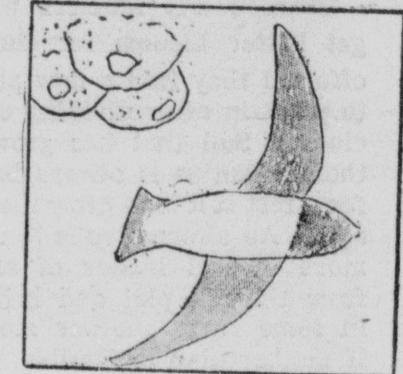

Lucanus was convinced that Jesus was really the Son of God. He no longer believed that God cruelly and maliciously wrought his vengeance upon the people; but, that by their own wrong-doing, they brought sickness and suffering upon themselves.

After curing Priscus, he decided to go from place to place and talk with everyone who knew anything about Jesus, and to write it all down. He even talked with Mary, the Mother of Jesus. Thus, although he never saw Jesus, he was to become one of the disciples and the author of the Book of St. Luke.

This is a really magnificent biographical and historical novel.

CLIFF SWALLOW — The 5 to 6 inch long Cliff Swallows nest in colonies, often building their mud nests under the eaves of buildings when they return in the spring. Catching insects on the wing, they weave back and forth through the air in graceful flight. Cliff Swallows may be identified by their square tails and light tan rump spots. They raise two broods from April to July. In flight, the common Barn Swallow shows a deeply forked tail. (From Out-of-Doors in Marin, copyrighted by M. F. F.

Bearded iris fanciers will get better blooms for their effort if they find a new plot to plant in after dividing old clumps. DRIVEWAY DILEMMASomething Low
To Step Across

Sometimes a gardener starts out with a definite preference for a certain kind of flower and builds his garden plans around that favorite. But more often the geography of the home grounds has a strong effect on what actually can be planted, and plans have to begin with a question like "What's good along a driveway?"

OK, what IS good along a driveway? The first and main consideration has to be height of plant, because there's nothing more irritating when you open the car door than having plants too tall to step across, or even too tall to escape being damaged by the opening door. The second consideration is the width of the plants. You don't want them running off into the lawn or across the drive. With these two limitations in mind, then, let's see what flowers will fill the bill.

IF YOUR DRIVEWAY offers a hot, sunny, well-drained location the best suggestions are portulaca (Moss Rose), alyssum (the dwarf kinds like Carpet of Snow and Royal Carpet), and a couple of newcomers, the gomphrenas Buddy and Cissy. These last two are surprisingly useful edging and border plants because they maintain a perfectly ball-shaped plant all summer long, require no pruning or flower picking to keep them blooming, and yet will provide three months of continuous trouble-free bloom from early started plants.

Buddy has purple flowers, Cissy has white ones, and both resemble clover blooms of amazing durability.

A final suggestion for the hot, dry driveway is the vinca (periwinkle) Little Pinkie.

This new strain has the same shiny, drought-proof foliage as the old periwinkles, and the same simple rose-pink never-fail blooms, but the plants qualify for your driveway when the old vincas never could, for these are only half the standard height, and your car door will swing right over them.

OTHER WELL qualified annual flowers for planting along a drive include pansies (it's too late to start pansy seed for bloom this year, but you could buy started plants), the very dwarf African marigold Cupid (available in yellow, gold, orange or mixed colors), Virginian stocks, lobelias (mostly blue flowered varieties, but there's a new one called Rosamond that's carmine-red with a white eye), and Livingston daisies.

The Livingston daisy is a so-called succulent plant which can be grown from seed to bloom in a single season, and if you want to impress your seed dealer ask him for it under the botanical name Mesembryanthemum criniflorum.

EVERYBODY LIKES petunias, but along the driveway there are only a few kinds that can qualify either from a height standpoint or from freedom from sprawling. You can have just exactly what you need in refined, compact plants if you stick with the Satin series — Red Satin or Peach Satin. These are all F-1 hybrids which are perfectly uniform in performance and reliable in production of multitudes of blooms.

GARDENERS' CHECK LIST

✓ Don't let fuchsias set seed pods. Pick the faded blooms off before they get that far if you want continued bloom.

✓ Keep hanging baskets watered daily to offset the fast-drying effect of wind and air.

✓ Water is the great need of other garden plants, also. Keep it on the leaves of such shallow rooted plants as fuchsias, camellias and azaleas, as well as at the roots.

✓ For quickest color in bare spots, set out a plant or two of Marguerite. Check the new pinks as well as white and yellow varieties.

✓ Take long stems when cutting roses to keep the plants compact and in good condition for new growth and bloom.

Always A Buyer But Never A Seller? Time Will Come

By ANDY LANG

It seems odd—until you stop to think about it—that there are hundreds of thousands of American families who have bought houses but never sold any.

There are certain things the first-time seller of a house should know. He should know, for instance, that it is important to decide, even before the house goes on the market, exactly what is and what is not being sold.

Any item attached to the house or property that is not readily portable is considered a part of the sale unless a special provision is made exempting it. But there are many other things that may or may not be included in the sale, among them air conditioners, window exhaust fans, electric heaters, laundry equipment, refrigerators, carpeting and so on.

IT IS WISE to make out a complete list of items that are to be included in the sale, to show the list to the prospective purchaser and to include it in the contract. Disagreements over comparatively minor matters have held up the closings of many sales.

Real estate dealers usually charge a fee of 5 per cent of the sales price of the property. For this, they pay for advertising the property, for the expense of taking prospective buyers to view it, and for advice about all matters connected with the sale. This last could very well be the most important part of a dealer's function, since his knowledge of real estate law sometimes can save you a lot of trouble before the transaction is completed.

There are three ways you can sell your house with an existing mortgage on it: (1) Have the buyer get a new mortgage to replace the old one; (2) have the buyer purchase the house "subject to" the mortgage; or (3) have the buyer purchase the house and "assume" the mortgage.

UNDER TODAY'S conditions, the savings and mortgage experts of the American Bankers Assn., recommend the first method. Then there are no contingent liabilities hanging over the sale.

If a buyer purchased a house "subject to" a mortgage, what he would really be seeking would be to have a mortgage executed in his name at the same interest you were paying. If your mortgage is at a rate lower than the present market rate, it is unlikely that any lender would enter into such a deal.

IN THE THIRD case, where the buyer would "assume" a mortgage, you might be dealing with a relative or close friend who had only a small amount of cash. He would give you a note and sales contract for the difference between the mortgage and the sales price agreed upon. In this event, the buyer would not sign any notes at the bank.

The title to the property would remain in your name until the first mortgage held by the bank was paid off. Then a first mortgage would be executed for the amount of the sales contract, which the buyer would repay to you on agreed terms.

In such an arrangement, the seller is accepting a contingent liability, because he is still responsible for the mortgage.

If the bank were forced to foreclose on the property and sold it for less than the unpaid amount of the mortgage, the seller would be responsible for a deficit judgment.

Logistics Help Take Sting Out Of Cleaning A House

Cleaning a house will never be easy, but it is easier today than it was even a year ago.

New and specialized products and equipment take some of the sting out. Also, preventive housekeeping is a big help. You protect cleaned areas so future cleaning is simpler. It will make your cleaning days fancy-free and save you time and energy. Follow these rules to save yourself:

Set realistic goals. Don't attempt more than you can handle at any given time.

Don't retrace steps. Finish a room before going into another. You'll see results of your efforts sooner. Park things belonging elsewhere at the door for delivery later.

Carry a basket or wheel a cart of cleaning supplies from room to room. Avoid extra stair climbing by keeping a full set of supplies on each floor.

Sit—don't stand—when you can (dusting books, vacuuming furniture, sorting magazines, in-place jobs). Take a break after cleaning a large room or two small ones, the magazine says. You deserve it!

Shadow Beauty

Use of insulation board shingle backer adds depth to the shadow line siding on a home, enhancing the beauty of the exterior. It also cuts construction costs by reducing the number of shingles required, since shingle backers replace an undercourse of shingles.

Building Board

Building board is a general-purpose insulation board frequently used as an interior finish for walls and ceilings. Although the boards have a factory-finished surface that requires no further decoration, they can be painted to blend with any color scheme.

Leave Those Stems

In picking tuberous begonias for indoor color, take short stems and leave the remaining stem on the plant. It will ripen and drop off by itself, while if you take it off near the trunk, there's always the chance that rot will set in and work its way down before the stem can ripen and drop.
